Historical Program February 9, 2026

Dan Cody, back by popular demand, returns to share Part II of his talk on the Erie Canal. Dan is well versed in Rochester history and is a favorite of the PHHS members.

Presentations are held at the Hilton Community Center's Ingham Room. Located at 59 Henry Street in Hilton. Presentations are free and open to the public. See you there!

Your response is needed: One of our program attendees suggested that you submit 5 topics of local interest you would like to hear more about. Let us know what your thoughts are and we can explore ways to present your ideas. Email me at naleport@gmail.com or parmahiltonhistory@gmail.com or snail mail to 1300 Hilton Parma Corners Road or just bring your suggestions to the next program on February 9. Thank you.

Great turnout for Dave Crumb's talk on the Fraser Department Store. He drew a large crowd of over 70 people. It was a cold night, but folks came out to hear about "When Hilton Had a Department Store." What other pieces of local history would you like Dave to share with us?

Meet Emma Watt

Emma is our new Intern from SUNY Brockport. She began her internship in January and will be with us until May. Familiar with PHHS, Emma has been videotaping our second Monday programs for 4 years. Following graduation from Hilton Central in 2024 she became a history major at Brockport with the goal of becoming an archivist or museum curator. Always attracted to history she wasn't sure she wanted to major in it because she thought the only career would be teaching, which she did not want to do. Her professors quickly dispelled that idea when they talked about museum and archivist work as a career.

What she likes about history is that she is always learning because there is so much to learn! Learning how history changes over time as more is discovered feeds her love of learning.

I asked her if there were any Monday programs that she found particularly interesting and she immediately responded to the presentation on the Lost Buildings of Orleans County. Historical architecture and fashion, especially the Victorian era, interest her so the discussion of Victorian hair wreaths was a favorite as well. What we choose to live in, whether buildings or clothes in any time period fascinates her.

Emma lives in Hilton with her parents, Amy and Larry and her young sister who is a sophomore at Hilton this year. We welcome her and look forward to working with her. I'm sure there will be mutual learning opportunities for all of us.

Parma Town Hall Window

Make sure to stop and see the Window display at the Parma Town Hall. Curator, Ken Freeman, has once again put together a timely display of Olympic memories including Cathy Turner's speed skating newspaper clippings and Sparky Hess' uniform and the torch she carried for the Salt Lake City Games. The Hess family donated the torch she carried to the museum so if you miss the window display stop by the museum building to see it up close.

What's New In the Collection by Ken Freeman February 2026

Random ramblings from the Curator

As the title says, this is all random thoughts before the "Big Snow".

Why is it that big snowstorms always come at the end of January? Remember the Blizzard of 77? Or 78? We have a picture on the wall in the Wadsworth Meeting Room of a Russell snowplow at the Hilton depot in February of 77, somewhere around the 15th. I have two or three slides I bought on eBay a couple years back, that railfan Paul Templeton took of that plow at Walker, probably the next day. Even two weeks after the storm, the snow was still at the rooftop of the plow.

Speaking of the cold. I keep wondering what happened to our fake ice that was in the icebox in the kitchen? So, now I must come up with a way to make a fake block of ice. I have an idea or two. One of the challenges I face is how to fake things for display, like a bowl of mashed potatoes. (Hint, think bright white grout).

Right now, in our off season, is when Assistant Curator Jim Otto and I think up and build new displays. Last year it was the doctor's office, plus we rearranged the furniture in the Meeting Room, to make it all more welcoming for our visitors. We try and come up with some neat new interactive displays for the kids to enjoy. I'm not sure just what Jim has in mind yet. I'm working on a refresh of what we have always called the Ag Room, plus a display of our collection of milk bottles and other items. Last year I refreshed what was the sewing area into a quilt display area, of which we have many. (Reminder, time to rotate the stock). In the "be creative" area, I need to figure out how to make an apple about the size of a basketball. Email me with ideas, or if you have one already.....

Someone asked me what I have on my wish list for display items. The top one now? A rotary dial pay phone. Memorabilia from the village, like items from the Candy Kitchen, or the Pleasure Shop or the Theatre. We just got a couple more pieces for Barile's Shoe Store. Just imagine if we had a barber pole and a barber chair. Now that would be a whole new display in the Gallery. Now, where to put that??

One thing that I'm tasked with is decorating the window in the Town Hall. If you don't know where it is, when you come in the front doors, it's to your left. Not a big space, thankfully. I thought our Christmas display was our best ever. Have you seen the latest one? All about the Winter Olympics. The seed of an idea came along when Sparky Hess's daughter called me and asked if we wanted her Olympics memorabilia, from when she ran with the Olympic Torch before the Salt Lake City Games. Sparky was an old family friend, and I can still recall my mom giving me updates on Sparky's quest to be able to run with the torch. Looking through all the paperwork, it would be like applying to work at some top security job. There's also Cathy Turner news clippings, and the backdrop is one of those Kodak panoramic photos. This one measures about 10 feet long and is of the opening ceremonies at the Lillehammer Games in 1994.

America's Semi-quincentennial (250th anniversary) is this year, and we will be decorating the museum and the town hall window for that, so stay tuned.

Our new season kicks off the second Sunday in April, as Easter Sunday is the week prior. We are always looking for new visitor guides (docent seems too stuffy to me). If you're interested, get in touch. We provide training. It's not a huge commitment, 2 hours on a Sunday, maybe three or four times during the season. I always make sure the newer guides have someone experienced with them, and the core we have has some great stories to tell of their time here in Parma. It's always a great way to learn more about happenings of the past.

Until next time.....

Ken

YEARBOOK SEARCH

Did you know your Historical Society has a collection of Hilton Yearbooks?

We are still looking for: anything pre 1937, 1939, 1942 1972, 1973, 1974, 1976, 1984 to 1990 and 1992, then 1997 through 2000 and 2002-2025. Do you have any of these years you would like a nice, warm, well-kept home for them to go to? We will be more than happy to adopt them.

Thank you to Dick Howie who is sharing his mother's 1942 yearbook to be digitized.
